4. Public Arts Programme

Vincent O’Shea is the Public Arts Manager for the programme 2024 – 2027 and gave a presentation to the members. The Public Arts Management Group (PAMG) was established in Kilkenny County Council to provide an oversight and guidance and deliver new projects and programmes in a range of artforms. There were 84 applications received from across the world. The following five projects were selected.

Name	Amount	Description
Brown Mountain Diamond	€45,000	Commission a residency programme and exhibition of five artists who are known for their work in community engagement and social investigation. The project will be based in north Kilkenny and offers great potential and delivered by artists with an excellent track record.
Pauline O’Connell – From Hide to Heel	€111,000	Socially engaged public art project to explore and celebrate the intertwined histories of Kilkenny’s industrial and agricultural sectors.
Fearghus Ó Conchúir – Extra Time	€113,000	Engage with Hurling and Camogie communities across county Kilkenny to create a diverse team of performers for a new dance film.
Asylum Productions - The Alice Project	€75,000	A multi-part, inter-disciplinary theatrical work examining the place of art in our community, and how we access it. Offers an outstanding level of community engagement based around the story, myth and legend of Alice Kytler and Petronella with a focus on the importance of that story.

Straymaker	€113,000	A county wide multi-disciplinary work, combining choral music, documentary, poetry, design and animation to create an immersive and evocative film.

There was positive feedback on the range of projects and types of projects that the community can engage with. The projects are due to commence in April 2025 and with Brown Mountain Diamond due to be completed in 2025 and the remaining projects in 2026.
